Because of the English Channel being a final node, all the running exchanges can be collected from the Netherlands. Lucrative Opportunity trading, locally and overseas, have led to a rapid evolution for the country in one of the world's first capitalist countries. Free from Burgundy [Edit | Edit Source] The Netherlands begins in personal union under Burgundy, which limits them to making allies and declaring wars. The choice now is to declare a war of independence and take some provinces (don't forget to manufacture complaints) from Burgundy and its other remaining vassals or wait until Burgundy voluntarily releases the Netherlands. If France finds itself overwhelmed with enemies, it might be better to find another power as an ally at this point. The spice islands in Indonesia are a good choice because they have a great development and produce precious goods. Netherlands gains permanent claim on all non-owned provinces in the region of the low-learning countries except East Frisia (1931) if the Government duchy: Set the government rank for the kingdom Earn 25 new triggers of the country event "New traditions and ambitions" unless they use personalized ideas or Using already Dutch ideas Ai Burgundy will not take this decision. Later in the game the player can try to establish colonies in Asia. They share their national ideas and some events with the Netherlands. Make sure that the trade actually reaches the English channel, as any country along the trade route can steal valuable profits. In general, the player should seek alliances with strong nations that do not compete in the same trade nodes or the same land but are willing to go to war with the nations they are. Outside of the HRE expansion will be just as tough, as the Low Countries are surrounded by strong nations competing for land and trade income. The Dutch are emerging as one of Europe's most capable naval and colonial powers. Effects If not an Elector of the Holy Roman Empire and not the Holy Roman Emperor, remove all owned provinces from the Empire If cuntry is Burgundy: Change primary culture to Dutch Change capital to Amsterdam (97) If country is Burgundy and France exists: All provinces in France region owned by Burgundy or their subject. Country becomes Netherlands gets new missions. Colonization[edit | edit source] Because of their naval and trade oriented national ideas, Holland is an optimal candidate for a colonial strategy. Take good notice of France's situation, and be prepared to take advantage when the situation arrives to do so. Strong nations such as France and Austria tend to rival Burgundy from the start of the game, so Holland can reliably ask for support of their independence. Focusing on taking provinces with special modifiers (e.g. estuaries, centers of trade) first will secure funds for further colonization. Let us concentrate all our expertise in land reclamation to improve the region and the city of Amsterdam so that we may create a northern port city worthy to rival the old urban centres of the South. However, human-controlled countries can never be inherited (see Artificial intelligence), so for a Holland player this results in instant independence. The Forming the Netherlands should be taken as soon as possible, as the Netherlands have access to a strong government form and country specific events, but the player has to decide between forming the Netherlands and possible expansion within the HRE. Amsterdam (97): does not have the province modifier eAAADevelopment of AmsterdameAAA. Allow The country: Effects The country: loses 50 administrative A, potential requirements if the country is controlled by the AIA: Allow Administrative technology is at least 10 is not a nation subject If not a tax state, Take ahead of the rich provinces of Lowlands can give a powerful advantage to Holland, as it is the raw income of the Province at high development that the commercial power added in one of the richest commercial nodes can push it to a regional power within the HRE. Commercial ideas can be taken to amplify the already massive trade profits. Taking administrative ideas as a first group will be a good addition due to the high cost of core drilling in the Netherlands and Hre, and the most economical mercenaries are always useful for small countries with low labor basins. Keep friends close, and even closer enemies [modify | Edit Source] France makes an excellent ally both before and after the game, but it is important to watch while the game progresses and how the great powers struggle for supremacy. The key to maintaining a constant expansion rate is good management of aggressive expansion, especially within the HRE where the sanctions for aggressive expansion are higher. The Netherlands is not a mistake of steppe the Netherlands there are no owners of the central provinces Breda (95), Amsterdam (97), Utrecht (98), Gelre (99) and Den Haag (4383) Amsterdam (97) It is part of a state owns at least 10 central provinces in the Netherlands. Commercial hegemony [EDIT | Edit Source] The Netherlands are in a favorable position to dominate trade. When the War of Independence will be over, the player will be ally with all the countries that fought on their side. When the country is strong enough to take a position against the larger neighbors (or having strongly strong allies), the decision should be taken. Early expansion [EDIT | edit The Opportunities Early expansion will most likely be eastward within HRE, as England, Burgundy, and France will be too strong to cope soon. France A" also a competitor in the commercial hub of the English Channel and A" very likely that Becoming colonial, making them a bigger target. Keep in mind that, due to the dynamic nature of the game, it can develop differently for other players. Decision [edit | Edit Source] Over the years the Netherlands has been affected by intermittent floods, which limits the potential of what otherwise would be a very attractive region. Please help you verify or update the oldest sections of this article. Almost some have been verified for the latest version 1.29. As the Netherlands starts the game within the HRE, they will not have to fight the emperor when fighting inside the empire. If the country is Burgundy, it does not currently have the disaster of the Dutch revolt. Especially Antwerp is a very interesting goal due to its commercial center status, and Breda is interesting because it is necessary to form the Netherlands. If Burgundy will voluntarily release Holland, alliances will not be formed. Alternatively, become a voter and make the decision will prevent the HRE, but it could be difficult. The search for independence should be the number one priority, as it is not possible to achieve a territorial expansion and e The inheritance of Burgundy would probably result in France or Austria annexed the Netherlands, slowly slowing down the possible expansion rate. Forming the Netherlands [Edit | Edit source] As shown before, the formation of the Netherlands should be taken as soon as possible, since the formation of the Netherlands will arrive with great benefits, but hinder the expansion within the HRE. Maintaining a large fleet with heavy ships is fundamental to keeping trade profits. Getting independence from Burgundy is quite simple, since the central location of Burgundy makes them a desired goal for great European powers. Search for opportunities to combine the provinces in the Netherlands (for example when Burgundy is weak) as they are needed to form the Netherlands and the added commercial income is very useful. Make sure you don't get a too aggressive expansion penalty, as a first coalition war can be disastrous. disastrous.
